Was Member of "Princess Pat's" Famous Canadian Fighting Unit

Funeral service for J. William Filson, 49, of Woodland Ave., widely known vocalist, who died at midnight Saturday from a heart attack following a brief illness, was held at 2 this afternoon at the Christian church.

It was a military funeral in charge of Charles H. Carey post No. 56, American Legion, of which he was a member, and Rev. C. F. Evans, pastor of the Christian church. Interment was in Grandview cemetery.

Filson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Filson, was born in Salem on Oct. 10, 1883. He attended the public schools here.

Studied in Europe

Early in life his gift in voice was recognized by his family and friends and he studied music under Savage, noted teacher, in Pittsburgh and New York City. Later he spent about a year abroad, studying in Paris and Italy.

At one time he taught voice in the Pittsburgh conservatory of music and was well known in musical circles in eastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania. He had appeared in programs in several towns in this district and occasionally sang over the radio.

He had a large studio at Saskatoon Can., when the World war broke out. Before the United States entered the war he gave up his work at Saskatoon and enlisted with the famous Princess Pat division of Canada.

This group, formally known as the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, was formed in 1914 by volunteers, many of whom had been in the Boer war in Africa. They arrived in France to take part in the notable battle of Mons.

Named for Duke's Daughter

The fighting unit was named for Princess Patricia, daughter of the Duke of Devonshire, then governor general of Canada. The regiment was outstanding among Canadian outfits only a mere dozen or so of the original battalion remaining. Filson joined the group as a rein-

Lisbon Teachers Are Paid In Full

DISBON, Jan. 3.—Teachers in the grade and high schools here were paid in full up to the close of the Christmas holiday period, it was announced today by George C. Porter, clerk of the board. The Lisbon board executed a loan early last year to discount the scholastic payroll, and after this was repaid, no more could be borrowed for like purpose during the old year.

The Lisbon board has considerable money due it for tuition from adjoining townships, only a part of which has been paid. In the event that necessity arises, the board is now in a position to borrow money at the close of the present term, May 15, next, in order that all salaries can be paid in full when the school term closes.

1932 Pretty Good In Way of Weather, Copeland Reports

MILLPORT, O., Jan. 3. — The year of 1932, so far as this county is concerned, came to a close with a delightful weather record, being largely free from severe extremes and climatic disasters, Cooperative Weather Observer Lawrence H. Copeland declared today. A persistent warm spell began Sept. 1, 1931, continuing to March 1, 1932, being 46.6 degrees above normal for the six months.

March was colder than the two preceding months, while the passing month of December was the coldest of the entire year. The normal temperature for the entire year was only one degree above normal, and only three times during 1932 was the temperature below zero. The snowfall for the old year was below normal. While the rainfall during the old year was below normal, water at this time is plentiful, Copeland declares.

The rainbow observed in this county at 4 p. m. of Dec. 24, was the only one recorded in this county during December in a period of 40 years.

The old year closed with good prospects for a heavy wheat crop, wheat fields being in good condition throughout the county. Rainfall during 1932 totaled 36.90 inches, while the normal for a 40-year record stands at 37 inches. The heaviest rain last year was 2.81 inches on July 16, this month being the wettest of the entire year. September was the dryest month, the rainfall that month being only 1.07 inches.

OHIO ASSEMBLY GETS MESSAGES

Hears from Governor On "Lame Ducks" And New Budget

BULLETIN

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 3—Repeal of Ohio's State Prohibition amendment and all state prohibition enforcement laws with legalization of 3.2 beer was proposed in bills and resolutions introduced in the state senate today by Sen. John F. Smolka (D., Cleveland.)

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 3. — The Ohio general assembly, after receiving two messages from Governor George White today, prepared to recess until Monday to await the executive's general message. The house adopted a resolution for the recess and the senate was expected to concur.

The governor's two messages today dealt with the partial budget, providing funds for governmental operations for the first six months of 1933, and the Lame Duck amendment. The executive indicated he would have another short message ready for delivery early this afternoon.

In his initial message, covering the partial budget, the executive informed the law makers that, in view of dwindling income, it was necessary that every economy be effected and expenditures held to a minimum.

The second message called upon the legislators to adopt the lame duck amendment to the federal constitution. Under this amendment, officials elected in November would take office in January, instead of March. Endorsing the amendment, the governor said "I need not point out that we have before us at this very moment the spectacle of a 'held over' president with the 'hold over' congress on our hands resulting in uncertainties and doubtful progress for our country."

"I am not looking for a football coach", said the director, and as far as I know the board of athletic control of the university is not looking for a coach.

"Sam Willaman has a good record here in the four years he has been head coach. Why should we want a new coach?"

St. John then pointed to Willaman's record during his service as head coach.

St. John said there was no truth in reports that he had approached Ray Ride of the Case school of Applied Science and D. O. (Tuss) McLaughry, of Brown university concerning their availability for Willaman's berth.

7 PERISH IN SHELBY TRAGEDY

Coal Oil Explosion Throws Flaming Fluid On Beds

(By Associated Press)

SHELBY, O., Jan. 3.—An entire family was wiped out early today when a fire destroyed their one-story home. The dead were: James Miller, 36, his wife, Beatrice, 27; James, Jr., 8; Ethel May, 5; Eunice Irene, 4; Evelyn, 2, and Nanna May, 12 days old.

Dies In Rescue Attempt

Miller died a few hours after the fire from burns received when he attempted to rescue his family from the blazing home.

Before he died, Miller told his father-in-law, A. W. McGregor, that the fire started when coal oil he was using to kindle the fire exploded, showering the three beds in which the family slept.

Suffering untold agony as he related his story, Miller told his father-in-law that he got up at 3 a. m. to start a fire in the only stove in the house.

As he lighted the stove, the blaze set the can of kerosene afire. The can exploded, showering the entire room in which the family slept with flaming liquid.

Miller, McGregor said, made repeated attempts to get his family out of the house, but his burning night clothes and the intense heat drove him from the blazing home.

Gives Alarm, Collapses

He made his way to the home of a neighbor where he gave the alarm and collapsed, his clothing burned from his body. He died a few hours later.

Miller had been unemployed for about a year, and was trying to make a living by trapping. He got up early this morning to run his trap lines.

While the interior of the house, little more than a shack, was burned out, the building was not burned to the ground.

The only living thing to escape the blazing pyre was a hound dog, which broke out of the house when Miller fled for help. Two neighbors, Elmer Dowd and Kenneth Evans, raced to the Miller home, but were unable to enter because of the flames.

About the Future

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Jan. 3—Same faces, same men issued New Year "outlook" predictions. It looks like they just stay in business all year to get to tell "what the new year has in store for us." Every one have enough to live on no matter what happens.

But I have never seen a paper print what a poor man thought of the "coming year." Suppose at a hanging in a jail, the reporters got statements from the warden, and all the spectators, but no one asked the convicted man, "what he thought the future had in store for him?"

So, tomorrow after the others have all been forgotten as usual, I have one from just such a man to tell you.

Yours,

Will Rogers

RUSSIAN TRADE

Termination of the Russian five-year plan arouses interest in the part that the United States played in it. It is a prod, also, to speculation concerning the part this country may take in the ambitious plans Russia holds for the future.

The United States department of commerce figures of exports to Russia and imports from Russia during the approximate period of the five-year plan are a story that may be told best by starting at the end—the totals for the first 10 months of 1932. By working backward to the climax the painful shock of the unhappy ending is avoided.

This country's exports to Russia during the first 10 months of 1932 amounted to $11,447,000. Its imports from Russia were valued at $7,796,000. The balance of trade in favor of the United States was $3,651 000.

Using the first 10 months of 1931 as a basis of comparison, one finds that exports to Russia in that period were valued at $95,748,000. Imports amounted to $10,597,000. The favorable balance of trade was $85 151,000. In percentages, the story is that exports declined 88 per cent during 1932. From a position as this country's sixth best customer, the Soviet Union dropped to a negligible place far down in the list. Significantly, during the same period, exports of all countries to Russia declined only 7 per cent.

This is an important detail of the amazing mass of depression evidence that is being placed before the people—evidence that makes them doubt themselves, their leaders and their system of doing things. Most of the Russian trade which the United States lost has gone to Germany and Great Britain, which have cooperated with their manufacturers to the end that they have been able to undersell the United States in virtually every line of trade.

The issue of Russian recognition, like the issue of the World court has come to represent a wide division of opinion between the government and the people. The government has seemed to take the attitude that it is confronted with a theory which makes recognition impossible. The people prefer to believe they are confronted with a condition which makes recognition imperative. The evidence on their side of the case is found in the amazing decline of trade.

READY TO START

It is impossible to recall a time when everything was more favorable for that sweeping rearrangement of the federal government which would convince the people of a sincere intention to apply the two-edged rule of economy and efficiency than exists now.

Although congressional hostility to the merging of departments and rearrangement of bureaus which President Hoover proposed recently is obvious, it is difficult to imagine that the Hoover proposals will not leave their mark. Congressional recognition of the demand for deflation of the federal government is exhibited in a Democratic proposal to give the incoming president power for this work far surpassing that which Mr. Hoover was able to get.

At first sight, it might look like unworthy discrimination between party leaders to balk at swallowing the Hoover reorganization gnat and voluntarily accept the Roosevelt reorganization camel. Details of the plans and the power to work them which his party would give the president-elect are not known, but they will have to be extensive to live up to their advance notices.

In this campaign, Mr. Roosevelt was willing to go the whole way in advocating federal retrenchment. So exaggerated were his estimates of possible saving that Mr. Hoover challenged him. Not the least dubious by far were many leaders of his own party, who knowing themselves to be more familiar with the federal structure than the candidate philosophically crossed their fingers and hoped for the best.

Circumstances have conspired to give the president-elect the most favorable opportunity he could ask to save the people's money. The president in office has made a start. Even if congress denies his plan, he has prepared the people for an enthusiastic reception to anything his successor may be able to do. Congress has shown itself willing to cooperate if the executive will take the initiative. Good luck to Mr. Roosevelt. If he has the courage to do half as much as he was willing to promise, he will exceed expectations.

INSULL STAYS ABROAD

Greece says no, and Samuel Insull remains in Athens. Cook County and the United States want the former magnate back so that he may be tried for various penitentiary offenses. The Greek Court of Appeals refuses the demand.

The decision at Athens rests on technical grounds; the court says the evidence presented under the extradition proceeding does not establish that a crime was committed. The former utilities empire which Insull built looks like a plate glass window wrecked by a truck. Thousands of investors saw their savings go down in the wreckage. But Greece says the czar of this shattered empire committed no crime.

Martin Insull Samuel's brother, out on bond in Ontarion awaiting possible extradition for connection with the same offenses charged at Athens, says "Good!" when he hears the cable news. Those whose earnings were swept away when the Insull bubble burst are not quoted; doubtless they see little to be enthusiastic about.

The Insulls Samuel in the storied land of the Greeks and Martin sojourning in our neighboring Dominion find the climate better away from the raw winds of the Loop. Their victims unfortunately have lost the means of foreign travel. They would like to hang a welcome sign for the brothers across State Street, with a huge painted hand pointing toward the nearest police station.

The gift-bearing Greek is more kind to the ex-czar of the fallen empire of the utilities than he is to goofs who built the empire with their savings and stood by when the wreckage came clattering down on their heads.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Stars Say:

For Wednesday, January 4

A day of much liveliness and activity in both business and private associations is the prestige based on the dominant lunar and mutual aspects. It is possible that this may occasion much stirring about or commotion, either in change of residence, environment or new business contacts. There may be strange adventures, or strangers may figure conspicuously in important rearrangements. All should flourish and bring much pleasure provided a degree of precaution against duplicity be taken.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of important change, with strange contacts or adventure in both business and private associations. Travel, new plans, opportunities and associates are possible, with much stirring in social, domestic, romantic and literary interests. But be on guard against some deception, fraud or irregularity. Curious things are in the air. A child born on this day should be brilliant, original, adventurous and also endowed with social qualities making for high experiences and much happiness in life. Its career may be unusual.

REAL WAR IN CHINA
COMIC OPERA IN THE U. S. A
TELL THIS TO FALSTAFF

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1933 By King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WAR yesterday, interested those that live in China, near the spot where the great wall runs down to the sea. It was real war, beginning last Sunday night and proceeding, with much killing, all day yesterday. Japanese airplanes bombed the city of Shanhaikwan, and were reported to have taken the city from the Chinese.

JAPAN has the better equipment, trained fighters, courage unlimited. China has equal courage, plus inexhaustible numbers, and inexhaustible patience. China's leaders declare that if Japan does not win soon deflation of her currency and general economic distress will make it impossible for her to go on with the war.

So China holds on, fights and waits.

OUR NOBLE country begins the new year with a report on "recent social trends," solemnly handed in by a research committee, supposed to indicate what we have been doing, and whither we are drifting, filling 1,600 pages.

One "gem of purest ray serene," showing that what we need in this country is a submissive '"lower class' that will bow down to its betters, will delight you. Here it is:

"Modern life is everywhere complicated, but especially so in the United States where immigration from many lands, rapid mobility within the country itself, the lack of established classes or castes to act as a brake on social changes, the tendency to seize upon new types of machines, rich natural resources and vast driving power, have hurried us dizzily away from the days of the frontier into a whirl of modernisms which almost passes belief."

YOU WILL travel far before you find any more choice bit of snobbishness than that. We haven't any "established classes" made up of Americans that take off their caps, or pull the forelock when they see a black coat. We have men from Poland and elsewhere that have built skyscrapers instead of being content to live in log cabins. We have changed "dizzily," from nothing at all to our modern civilization, and that is what is the matter with us.

There should be another commission to report that the declaration of independence should never have been signed, since it wiped out "established classes or castes, to act as a brake on social changes," and that Jefferson should have been put in jail for writing that all men are created equal.

Editorial Quips

Possibly if the United States would cancel the war debts Europe would be willing to stretch a point and concede that this country did prove the decisive factor in winning the war.—Ohio State Journal.

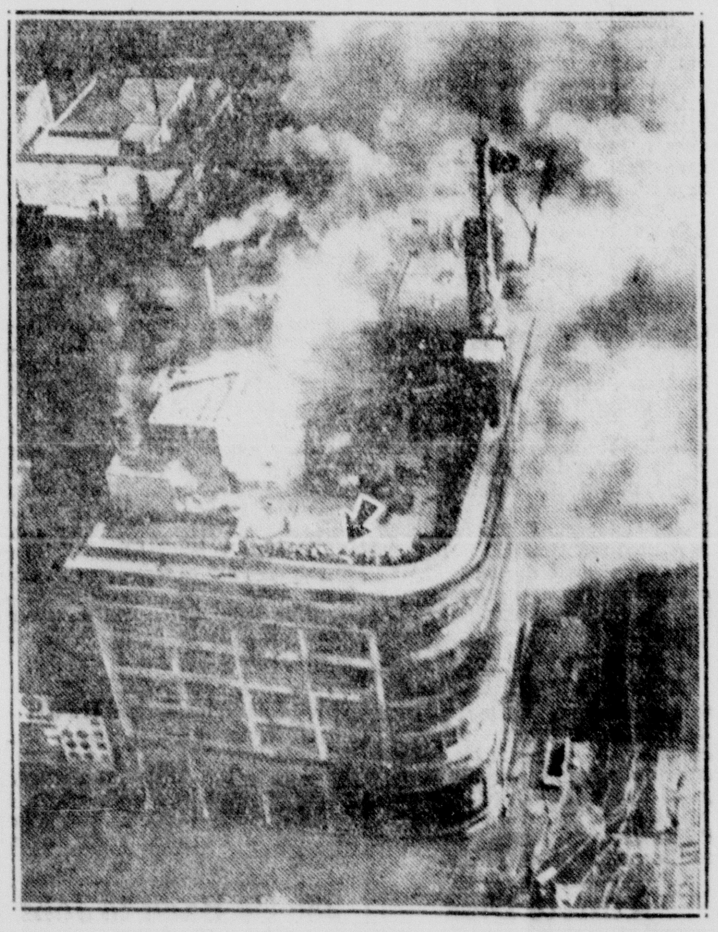
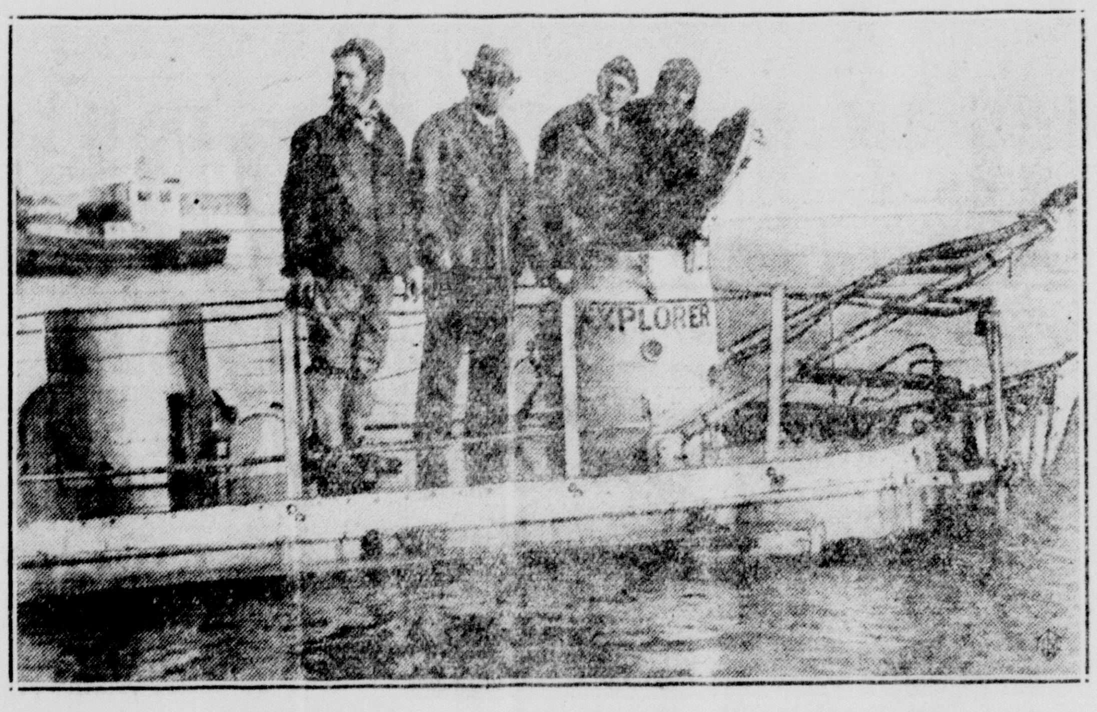
Theory that crooks are mentally infirm is borne out by the theft of five $100,000 Liberty Bonds, the number of which are a matter of record, from a New York bank—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

Tokio Blaze Fatal to Fourteen



An aerial view, made while fire was raging in the Shirokiya department store at Tokio, showing a group of terror-stricken girl employees on the roof (arrow) awaiting rescue. Fourteen salesgirls lost their lives and scores of shoppers were injured. The conflagration broke out at the height of the Christmas shopping rush, when the store, the largest in Tokio, was thronged to capacity.

New Submarine for Peacetime Pursuits



Designed for such peaceful pursuits as pearl fishing, wreck salvaging and oceanograph survey, this new submarine, the invention of Simon Lake, is shown as was tested on Long Island Sound by William Beebe, ll-known deepsea naturalist. The craft is only 22 long and 6 feet wide. It can dive to the ocean floor, where a special device enables occupants to reach out and pick up objects. There is also an arrangement whereby a diver may leave the submarine at the bottom of the sea. Left to right on the submarine's deck are, Frank Crilley, navy diver; Simon Lake; Dr. Beebe and Jack Dunbar.

NEW YORK Day by Day

by O.O.McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Tailors to the bloods are featuring "host suits in colors". They are Tuxedo cut, of purple, brown and green, with shawl collars flaring in satin. And mostly sported by jaunty binge throwers in their penthouses or bachelor apartments.

Noel Coward introduced the sartorial innovation in the American colony at Cannes last summer. The popularity of lounging costumes for men the past year is a phenomenon of the tailoring trade. More gadabouts are staying home and thus more money for such informal attire

So much so a perky establishment has opened off Park avenue dealing solely in strictly tailored robes, smoking jackets and pajamas chez moi. They range in price from $15 to one extravagant creation for $200—bearing a tag "Lytell". (Bert, I assume.) Some hand-made monograms, alone, are $12.

In other years a dressing gown was worn chiefly by English actors, applying makeup. Outside of the the theater it was considered a bit foppish. But today the average snappy fashionist has at least a dozen. To say nothing of the sundry variations in house suits and bath robes.

New York's largest apartment house—the London Terrace—would house the exact population of my Ohio town. We had two dentists and six doctors but this concreted Gibraltar has 30 doctors and 12 dentists. But its patio is a replica of our tree-lined public square with benches, band stand in the middle and everything.

Not many human catastrophes have the poignancy of those bursting golden dreams in big city hospitals. Life comes to a sudden stop daily for some couple in love. Often a new love that has that tender glow of a child's forehead near the hair. Then lightning separation. The white plague. As grimly white as the ward where so hopefully, they clutch hands. A nurse tells of the heroism to hide a racking cough—a cough suggesting an iceberg menacing a frail barque. And the despairing expectancies. It's not all defeat. Gallant dreams often come safely to harbour!

John Ringling, in fine fettle after serious illness was seen here and there in the social whirl before his takeoff for the circus winter headquarters at Sarasota, Fla. A bit thinner, he looks years younger. His bride is a lovely lady of Dresden china daintiness, attractively demure. She is also keenly interested in the art researches of "Mister Jawn"—as circus folk hail him. Ringling is one of the most astute judges of old paintings in America.

On Vanderbilt avenue shortly after 4 a. m.—I was meeting a train, you mugs—the first newsboys arrive, young leather-lunged huskies befogged with sleep. One told me he lived at Sheepshead Bay, an hour's subway ride. He works until five in the afternoon and goes to bed at 8 p. m. Yet he was lively with good-natured banter and a zest for life. "Some day" he said, "I'll have my own newsstand under the El, get to work at 7 a. m. and take things easy."

Jack Whiting, blond juvenile heart pumper for matinee Juliets, insists upon his beautiful wife—the former Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks—occupying a first row at opening nights of his shows. And plays directly to her. In appearances before the microphone, too, he arranges for his wife to be in his line of vision on the other side of the glass. In the so often marital haphazardy of the theater, their romance is looked upon as one of the "ideal marriages."

Frank Cambria invited an assorted literati to meet Clara Bow in his apartment at the Roxy when she hit town. Those of us expecting a hoyden, expressing the vigour of an entire hockey team, found instead a subdued lady. At least during my brief stay. She might have been a chatelaine gracing a decorous Tuxedo Park establishment. She sipped tea and wore most of us down to a gentle bleakness with up-the-river heigh-ho. I'm cramming Thoreau for the next like affair.

Save at premieres, I enjoy the balcony's first row more than other seats in the theater but must abandon it. During a monotonous play, I struggle through the entire action to refrain from letting my program flutter to the orchestra circle. Some day I'll give in and get myself sent home.

SYNOPSIS

Nevis and Bill Lancaster's ideal married life is of short duration. Complications set in when Bill makes a success selling bonds and they live beyond their means. Then Bill meets Olive Blanchard, who tries to win him. Although Bill sees Olive frequently, he loves only Nevis. Nevis, however, believing Bill is having an affair with Olive, encourages the attentions of Harry Carter. News of a friend's divorce makes Nevis realize how near the precipice is her own marriage and she begs Bill to take her away. He secures an inspector's position on a Porto Rican sugar plantation and he and Nevis begin over again. Their former harmony is missing, however. One day, Bill comes upon Nevis innocently holding hands with Harrison, a sugar expert from the States. A scene follows and Harrison's influence affects Bill in business and society. He blames Nevis. The climate disagrees with Nevis and she is homesick but does not complain. The young couple are unpopular with their neighbors due to petty jealousies. Bill receives no cooperation from his superior. He betters his position by ingratiating himself with Linda Hayes, wife of the manager of a neighboring company. Nevis, however, believes it is just another flirtation. Nevis goes home for a visit. Bill's father thinks his son is making a mistake by staying in Porto Rico.

"I hate like thunder to see you go. Why don't you renig " said Della.

CHAPTER XXIII

Walter Mason, sitting on the Lancaster porch, remarked suddenly:

"There's no need for him to come back to this one-horse town, Lancaster. I've got a job for him right in New York when he's ready to take it."

Nevis said:

"Uncle Walter!"

"Well, of course. That was the idea when he went down there wasn't it, that he must learn enough to make himself useful to me. I don't mean that he has to come back and try and reform the sugar business. It's gotten along pretty well all these years without any young crusaders, you know," said Mason.

There were mountains, friendly ones, nearby; and clear running streams; and ice cold lakes. There was golf and tennis and dancing. Nevis grew round and rosy again. The nights were cool for sleeping and even the hot days had some snap in them. She said, after six weeks..... "I haven't had but one [illegible] since I came home!" and, "Well, I should hope not!" observed her mother scandalized. "Nevis, you'll have to persuade Bill to come back to the States. That's no place for you—down there."

She said, quietly:

"As long as he's there, it's my job to stick with him. I got him into it, Mother."

At the end of two months Nevis started back. She stayed again, overnight, at Della's. They sat up most of that night and talked.

Small Mort was a husky, demanding person. "Isn't he grand?" said Della delightfully. "I think I'll produce a little sister for him, presently. He's getting too darned selfish. Just like his father," she added, sighing, and not meaning it at all.

She took Nevis to the boat. She said: "I hate like thunder to see you go. Why don't you renig ..... and stay home and demand that Bill come on back? It's pretty pointless burying yourself down there, don't you think so."

Nevis, walking up the gangplank, said..... "No." She could, she thought, stand the gaff now. She felt so much better. She had all sorts of things in her trunk. Aunt Margaret had given her a birthday check. And she had had the satisfaction of seeing with her own eyes that her mother was all right. Not really ill, after all, just a little lonely perhaps. And the short holiday had set them both up, her mother and herself.

Bill met her in San Juan and swung her off her feet in a huge embrace. "Golly, I'm glad to see you! You look marvelous," he said, "just like your old self. Linda and Hayes are here at the hotel. They motored up with me. We'll get along back tomorrow."

He hurried her into the car, talking, questioning..... How's Dad..? and your mother? I know you wrote often enough. How's Della.....? and Mort, the old son of a gun? We have a swell crop, everything is tooting along in great shape. Hayes tells me his assistant is leaving to go to Santa Domingo. Looks very much as if I would get the job. More money, not that that matters as much as the job itself....."

Linda met her, blonde and lazy. "You look like a new woman," she said. "I told you you would. We've taken good care of Bill while you were gone." She smiled at him, intimately. Nevis thought, sharply....."How good, I wonder?" and hated herself for it. Why did she have to be so suspicious and so jealous? Surely, she hadn't been born that way! And it wasn't Bill's fault that he had his particular smile and his particular charm and his particular appeal to women. He couldn't help it.

So she went back to the little house and lived for some weeks on her memories, entertaining Bill with chatter and gossip and description and speculation..... "Bill, you ought to see Lucy Morrow..... She's gotten so fat she has to have a specially made sedan! And Lois French is marrying Dan Kirkwood can you bear it.....? of all the funny couples! And your father has a new car, a beauty."

Westlynne news, too. "Olive's gone off on her father's new yacht," she said, and shot him a glance from under her eyelashes.

"Too bad she wouldn't send us a postal," grinned Bill, perfectly at ease.

But in a week or two all the gossip had been exhausted, and the new clothes were an old story by the time a month or so had passed. And it was the rainy season and there was a hurricane that mercifully had passed them by and struck at other places, but left them pretty bedraggled, having been up all night,, wondering if it would hit them or go on over. And the roads were rivers themselves swelled and came down bearing all sorts of extraneous matter with them, such as dead chickens and drowned goats. And there was an earthquake or two, minor ones, but a little startling, not that Nevis wasn't used to them by now; there was usually enough earth tremor to set the pictures on her walls to dancing or to leave them askew, at least once a day or so. And there were mosquitoes and malaria and by the time the winter had come she was pretty much back where she had been. And Linda had gone home, for a few months, to do winter sports at Placid and get the tropics out of her blood for a time, she said.

Nevis had told Bill of Walter Mason's attitude and Bill said, doggetly, "Well, I won't quit. When he's got a decent job for me, he can write and tell me. We'll get along here meanwhile. It's time," said Bill, "that I saw one job through, isn't it?"

She said to herself despairingly: "Why is it that we don't get any nearer, that things are so little different? She meant..... why had they not achieved a perfect and unshakable intimacy and unity. She thought, in a way, we might just as well be back where we were. We'd be a lot healthier at any rate.

But the change of locale had brought no alteration of emotional circumstances. There was, she decided, wearily, as much temptation for Bill in Linda as in Olive. Not that Bill was that altogether despicable creature, a ladies' man. He wasn't. But women liked him; and he liked them. And wherever he was there would be some bored and, generally, attractive woman to let him know she liked him. Nevis inquired of herself, frankly enough... and if I felt better and there was a man down here as attractive as Harry Carter and Bill was away all day, what then? It seemed to her that instead of cutting a rope which bound her to a set of circumstances and cutting it as a grand solution for al ltime, she had simply stepped from a merry-go-round into a maze.

But she wouldn't take the count of ten. Save for her tears at the time her mother's letter reached her, she had not surrendered and told Bill that she was unhappy; and if he was, she didn't know it.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

Good Health To You This New Year!

We have crossed the threshold of another year. How do we approach the problems of 1933? Is it in the spirit of defeat, or of courage and determination?

Dr. Copeland

What the year will bring us none can tell of course, but it cannot be doubted that our attitude of mind will have much to do with the outcome. Sydney Smith or somebody said, "If wishes were horses beggars would ride." Our thoughts cannot determine the fate of a nation, but they have much to do with what each of us will do to help in the forward movement of mankind.

Fit to Deal With Problems

What you can do or what I can do, depends largely on our state of health. A sound mind in a sound body is essential to happiness and ambition. The mind will be sound in its functioning if the body is vigorous and normal in its every part.

Our outlook on life and our fitness to deal with its problems are founded on the state of health. In the last analysis, what we do today and on every day of 1933, will be determined by our physical welfare.

If you wake up tomorrow morning, feeling yourself blue and discouraged, firm in the belief that the country has gone to the dogs, take stock of your physical state. If you are "billous," if your liver is sluggish and the elimination imperfect, you can't be expected to think straight. Under such circumstances your view of the future is sure to be distorted and so out of focus that your own mental eyes will deceive you.

You and I have a direct, personal, selfish interest in the welfare of our country. It is the solemn duty of each of us to do a man's work every day in 1933. We cannot serve our own ends and certainly not those of our fellow citizens, if we neglect our bodies and to suffer ill health in consequence.

Duty to Preserve Health

Don't you see that in a sense, failure to preserve health is an unpatriotic act? It is a crime against society. No matter how humble may be one's position, he has a part in the world's work. The whole structure is weakened by one man's failure. He must fail in whole or in part if he has poor health. If that poor health is his own fault then he has done a wrong to his fellow men.

Let us face 1933 in full confidence that all will be well if we strive for the common good. With that spirit we can solve every problem that confronts us.

NAVY BLUE AGAIN

More Popular Than Ever Because It Harmonizes So Well With Gray

By MARIE MAROT

SOME COLOR experts have been prophesying for some time that navy blue was on the way out, and that this winter would see it definitely put in moth balls for some seasons. But with the first crop of midseason clothes to hand, one sees that navy blue is as firmly entrenched as ever. And it looks as though it would be as popular again this coming spring as ever.

Today we show two new midseason models, one blue with white, the other blue with gray. The charming frock is in navy blue striped velvet and white crepe de chine edging borders the smart and new zigzag neckline. The coat is ever so new and quite typical of what will be seen in early spring. It is of navy blue broadcloth and the model is beltless. There is a high neck closing at the side. The coat is collared and cuffed in blue-gray fox. A splendid coat for all day wear.

Try Two Salads Daily for a Healthful, Adequate Diet

Experts recommend two salads a day in the list of protective foods for a completely adequate diet. It is sometimes difficult, however, to get the younger generation faithfully to eat their two salads, and they are the ones most needing protective foods. But you will find, mother, that your youngster will gladly eat the two prescribed salads daily, if one of those salads is of fruit.

There is always a party feeling about fruit salad. It is so very attractive, as well as tasty and it is always important that the eye be pleased as well as the palate, when it comes to foods, especially the foods that are particularly good for us. Fresh fruits provide not only vitamins but bulk, minerals, and alkaline salts, which balance the food. Then, too, fresh uncooked fruits contain the so-important fruit sugar.

See to it that the daily fruit salad contains citrus fruits, for their flavors combine so well with vegetables, meats, cheese and other foods. Then, too, the juices of citrus fruits add a delicacy of flavor as well as a touch of tastiness to many salad dressings. So see to it that you serve oranges, lemons and grapefruit so that vitamins A. B. C. calcium, phosphorous, iron and cellulose contribute to the diet of your family.

A Salad Menu Guide

To aid my readers in planning their menus, I am giving today an excellent fruit salad menu guide and a fruit salad dressing guide, that, if followed, should add health and a piquant taste to the family meals this winter. With the first course or appetizer, a small salad of light fruits, or fruits and vegetables with French dressing is good, and a medium portion of the same with any dressing as a separate course or with meat.

If intended as a main course, a generous portion of fruit salad with nuts, cheese, meat or fish, the latter two marinated with any desired dressing. For dessert, mixed fruits, jellied or frozen with mayonnaise or whipped cream.

With sliced tomatoes, avocado or a combination vegetable salad, lemon juice with salt makes a healthful, bestful dressing. For the youngster, lemon juice with sugar is splendid with grated carrots, lettuce or grated apple. To marinate cooked vegetables, meats or fish, mix thoroughly six tablespoons of lemon juice, three tablespoons oil, one teaspoon salt, and a quarter teaspoon of pepper. If desired, a half teaspoon onion juice may be added. This makes about one-half cup of dressing. I should be added separately to various ingredients, which should be allowed to stand until well seasoned or marinated. Drain. Serve as an additional dressing. Use mayonnaise thinned with orange juice if used with fruit salad.

A Healthful Salad

A most healthful salad can be made by marinating two cups of cold roast lamb, duck, chicken or veal, cut into small pieces and serving with four oranges cut in pieces, and placing on lettuce leaves with French dressing. Experiment with fruits, vegetables and meats to obtain new and healthful combinations.

Recipes for Club Socials

We wrote recently of quantity recipes for social occasions as well as for tea rooms and restaurants.

We therefore are giving a list of quantities necessary to feed fifty people. One pound of butter will spread fifty sandwiches or make forty pats. One and a quarter pounds of coffee, will yield fifty cups of coffee, while one pound of sugar equals about one hundred cubes. A quart of cream is sufficient for forty cups of coffee and the same amount of whipped cream will suffice for fifty desserts. Fifteen pounds of ham will serve fifty people, twenty pounds of beef being necessary for the same number. A four-pound chicken will yield about one pound of solid meat and it takes about twenty-five pounds of chicken to serve fifty portions. The following will yield fifty helpings of Dutch apple cake.

Mix and sift two quarts of flour. Add three tablespoons baking powthoroughly four eggs and add three and three-fourths cups of milk. Add eggs and milk to dry ingredients, then add one cup of melted shortening. Pour into well-greased shallow pans. Cut into sixteenths, a half peck of apples. Press the sharp edges into the dough in parallel rows. Brush the top with melted butter, sprinkle with a mixture made of one cup of sugar mixed with two cups of cinnamon and bake in a moderately hot oven for about 30 minutes.

THE STATEMENTS CONTAINED HEREIN ARE NOT GUARANTEED BUT ARE BASED UPON INFORMATION WHICH WE BELIEVE RELIABLE. COPYRIGHT, 1932, BY THE PITTSBURGH PRESS. ADDITIONAL INFORMATION ON REQUEST.

As we look forward into 1933 we find so many contingent factors influencing the business situation that it is very difficult to appraise the prospects for the year. The most encouraging thing that can be said at the moment is the fact that the major problems to be encountered and overcome have been exposed to public view and, consequently, do not carry the demoralizing threat of something that is about to happen. With our problems admitted and out on the operating table, a solution is apt to be found more promptly.

Budget Chief Problem

The problem, bearing most directly on business recovery and offering at the same time both the greatest hope and the gravest consequences, is the balancing of the federal budget. This must be accomplished before the credit structure can be relieved of strain and suspicion and before money and credit will return to the normal arteries of business in sufficient volume to stimulate recovery. The next important hurdle in the bath of business revival is the resumption of international trade and international good-will. The difficulties surrounding the deadlock on war debts and the strangulation of foreign trade means much more to this country than the mere loss of our export business. The price level of commodities is directly involved.

Recognizing the importance of the balancing of the federal budget and the settlement of the numerous international problems, it has been discouraging to witness the lack of cooperation between the outgoing and the incoming administration; likewise the lack of accord between the Democratic leaders in Congress and the Democratic President-Elect in regard to the method of balancing the budget. However, in the face of these discouraging indications and in the fact of war debt defaults, the security markets have shown remarkable stability. The chartists triple bottom would seem to have been for the time being at least firmly established. Revealing a surprising resistance to shock during the past four weeks and absorbing a substantial amount of tax selling on a rising trend during the past few days, the stock market would seem to say that it is in a strong technical position, ready to respond promptly to any favorable news. Such news might be the imminent announcement of a strong cabinet by Governor Roosevelt combined with a vigorous declaration of policy that would indicate the direction of his leadership.

Await Political Developments

Inasmuch as the immediate future is dependent upon political developments more than anything else and recognizing the uncertainty and inevitable delay of political action, the investor should continue to exercise a considerable degree of caution in placing his funds. Security of principal and maintenance of dividends should be of paramount interest. With this thought in mind we have prepared the accompanying analysis of 27 stocks, whose earnings for 1932, according to reliable estimates, will cover their present dividends. Taking the group as a whole, 1932 earnings will show a margin of 31 per cent over dividend requirements and the average yield on current prices is 7.1 per cent. All of the companies in the list are in sufficiently strong financial position to promise the continuance of dividends for a reasonable length of time pending some improvement in the general situation. Furthermore, practically all of these companies cater to markets that have shown unusual stability and promise to provide fair earnings even at the present deflated level of business. A diversification of funds in this list of stocks would give one representation in such basic industries as public utilities, goods, railroads, chemicals and chain store merchantising, with a sprinkling of miscellaneous specialties that are in an unique position.

Salem Cagers Again Assigned To Warren District Tournament

Quakers Meet Chaney In Third Contest of Season Here Saturday

Salem High school varsity basketeers were again assigned to compete in the annual Northeastern Ohio district cage tournament at Harding High gymnasium, Warren, on March 3-4.

Schedules for sectional tourneys were announced Monday by H. R. Townsend, Ohio interscholastic commissioner.

The Quakers are scheduled to participate in their third game of the season on their home court Saturday, tackling Chaney High of Youngstown.

Won Title Last Year

It will be the third year in which Salem, undefeated in two early-season games, will play in the Warren tourney. The Stonemen won titular honors in the Warren play-off last year and the season before was one of two teams surviving competition to advance into contests at Akron.

All Columbiana county Class A schools with the exception of Wellsville and East Liverpool will enter the Warren tourney which will be run off in charge of Pierre Hill, Warren athletic director. Wellsville and East Liverpool will compete at Steubenville in eastern eliminations.

B Tourney Assigned

County Class B schools will vie for honors at McDonald, Ashtabula, Trumbull and Mahoning Class B athletes will also compete in this event.

Right now, however, fans are mainly concerned over the Salem-Chaney game. The Chaney tossers have one of the district's leading teams and are expected to give the undefeated Quakers a hard tussle.

Reserve cagers of the two schools collide in the prelim.

OHIO TOSSERS BEAT KENTUCKY

Buckeyes Put Up Season's Best Performance In Monday Victory

(By Associated Press)

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 3.—Perhaps the most impressive showing of Ohio State's basketball team this season was given last night when the Bucks defeated the vaunted Kentucky Wildcats 46 to 30.

Previously unbeaten the Southerners were unable to stop Ohio's attack, led by Hoskett, who scored 15 points.

Near the end of the game, Ohio had doubled Kentucky's score, but the Southerns pulled up a bit after Hinchman and Hoskett of Ohio State were ejected on personal fouls.

Until they met Ohio State, the Kentuckians had averaged 50 points a game and had doubled the score of every opponent.

La Harlow Tennis Pupil

Teaching may be a nerve-wracking profession, but there aren't many who would grumble at taking over the job held by Harvey Snodgras, former tennis champion. The lovely Jean Harlow, platinum blonde of the screen, is the newest pupil to come under the Snodgras wing. They are shown here during a recess on the courts at Beverly Hills, Cal.

PANTHER LINE COPS LAURELS IN BIG DEFEAT

Pittsburghers Outclassed But Forward Wall Puts Up Great Battle

By PAUL ZIMMERMAN,
Associated Press Sports Writer

PASADENA, Calif., Jan. 3 — To Pittsburgh's football team Southern California's sturdy linemen still are "the topless towers of Troy".

The Panther pack pounded at the Trojan Ramparts in the Rose Bowl yesterday, before 83,000 persons, to obtain after 60 minutes of fierce football only a 35 to 0 defeat.

Most Decisive Defeat

It was the most decisive score written into the 18 years of Rose tournament intersectional grid history, eclipsing that 47 to 14 walloping the Trojans meted out to Pitt three years ago.

To quote the man who should know best, one Dr. John Bain Sutherland, Panther coach, "it was simply a case of too much guards and tackles."

The speed with which Coach Howard Jones' team struck in scoring its first touchdown, and the final score, belittle the valiant efforts of the invading Panthers who bit off more Trojan than they could chew, and realizing it, kept right on fighting.

Get 22 First Downs

The Trojans rolled up 22 first downs to nine and out-gained Pitt 278 yards to 193. Two of Troy's four passes were completed for touchdowns while the Panthers made four of 11 throws good.

Southern California held the punting edge averaging 34 yards to 32. Warburton, with his flashes of speed, rolled up the highest individual average with 78 yards gained, followed by all-American Heller, with a 63-yard total and Griffith with 61.

The victory was the fourth for Southern California in as many Rose tournaments. It was the third unsuccessful appearance for Pittsburgh.

Ohio's Conference Teams Will Open Season This Week

COLUMBUS, Jan. 3.—The battle for the Buckeye conference basketball championship will get under way Saturday night when all six teams will see action.

Marshall college of Huntington, W. Va., officially marks its debut into Buckeye ranks by entertaining the Ohio university five. The other games will find Wittenberg at Cincinnati and Ohio Wesleyan at Miami.

Other Games Booked

Some of the schools have non-conference contests this week to tune up for Saturday's conference premieres. Wittenberg makes a jaunt into Indiana, meeting Wabash at Crawfordsville tonight and Depauw at Greencastle tomorrow evening. Marshall will play Morris Harvey tonight and Miami will play host to Indiana while on Wednesday evening Marietta plays at Ohio U.

Based on early season games, Ohio Uuiversity and Ohio Wesleyan seem to be the foremost contenders for this year's title. Wesleyan, defeated Ohio State, Akron Goodyear, Findlay and Toledo St. Johns but lost to Western Reserve. Ohio defeated Reserve but lost to the Goodyear quintet.

Bobcats Strong

The Bobcats have also scored wins over Bliss, Wilmington and independent teams from East Liverpool and Zanesville.

This season's race will be the seventh since the Buckeye conference was formed back in 1926. Cincinnati won the first season (1927) in 1928 Denison was first and for the next two years Cincinnati and Wesleyan tied for honors. In 1931 Ohio university took the pennant and last year it was passed on to Depauw, a non-conference member this year.

Salem Cagers Again Assigned To Warren District Tournament

Quakers Meet Chaney In Third Contest of Season Here Saturday

Salem High school varsity basketeers were again assigned to compete in the annual Northeastern Ohio district cage tournament at Harding High gymnasium, Warren, on March 3-4.

Schedules for sectional tourneys were announced Monday by H. R. Townsend, Ohio interscholastic commissioner.

The Quakers are scheduled to participate in their third game of the season on their home court Saturday, tackling Chaney High of Youngstown.

Won Title Last Year

It will be the third year in which Salem, undefeated in two early-season games, will play in the Warren tourney. The Stonemen won titular honors in the Warren play-off last year and the season before was one of two teams surviving competition to advance into contests at Akron.

All Columbiana county Class A schools with the exception of Wellsville and East Liverpool will enter the Warren tourney which will be run off in charge of Pierre Hill, Warren athletic director. Wellsville and East Liverpool will compete at Steubenville in eastern eliminations.

B Tourney Assigned

County Class B schools will vie for honors at McDonald, Ashtabula, Trumbull and Mahoning Class B athletes will also compete in this event.

Right now, however, fans are mainly concerned over the Salem-Chaney game. The Chaney tossers have one of the district's leading teams and are expected to give the undefeated Quakers a hard tussle.

Reserve cagers of the two schools collide in the prelim.

Jim Bausch, former University of Kansas football star, who won the decathlon at the Olympic games last Summer with a record-breaking point total, has added another laurel to his imposing wreath. Jim has been awarded the James E. Sullivan Memorial Medal as the outstanding amateur athlete of 1932. The award was voted on by over 600 sports authorities and the result announced by the A. A. U. Bill Carr, University of Pennsylvania, who starred in the 400-meters at the Olympics, was awarded second place.

OHIO TOSSERS BEAT KENTUCKY

Buckeyes Put Up Season's Best Performance In Monday Victory

(By Associated Press)

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 3.—Perhaps the most impressive showing of Ohio State's basketball team this season was given last night when the Bucks defeated the vaunted Kentucky Wildcats 46 to 30.

Previously unbeaten the Southerners were unable to stop Ohio's attack, led by Hoskett, who scored 15 points.

Near the end of the game, Ohio had doubled Kentucky's score, but the Southerns pulled up a bit after Hinchman and Hoskett of Ohio State were ejected on personal fouls.

Until they met Ohio State, the Kentuckians had averaged 50 points a game and had doubled the score of every opponent.

Ohio State 46; Kentucky 30.

Teaching may be a nerve-wracking profession, but there aren't many who would grumble at taking over the job held by Harvey Snodgras, former tennis champion. The lovely Jean Harlow, platinum blonde of the screen, is the newest pupil to come under the Snodgras wing. They are shown here during a recess on the courts at Beverly Hills, Cal.

PANTHER LINE COPS LAURELS IN BIG DEFEAT

Pittsburghers Outclassed But Forward Wall Puts Up Great Battle

By PAUL ZIMMERMAN,
Associated Press Sports Writer

PASADENA, Calif., Jan. 3 — To Pittsburgh's football team Southern California's sturdy linemen still are "the topless towers of Troy".

The Panther pack pounded at the Trojan Ramparts in the Rose Bowl yesterday, before 83,000 persons, to obtain after 60 minutes of fierce football only a 35 to 0 defeat.

Most Decisive Defeat

It was the most decisive score written into the 18 years of Rose tournament intersectional grid history, eclipsing that 47 to 14 walloping the Trojans meted out to Pitt three years ago.

To quote the man who should know best, one Dr. John Bain Sutherland, Panther coach, "it was simply a case of too much guards and tackles."

The speed with which Coach Howard Jones' team struck in scoring its first touchdown, and the final score, belittle the valiant efforts of the invading Panthers who bit off more Trojan than they could chew, and realizing it, kept right on fighting.

Get 22 First Downs

The Trojans rolled up 22 first downs to nine and out-gained Pitt 278 yards to 193. Two of Troy's four passes were completed for touchdowns while the Panthers made four of 11 throws good.

Southern California held the punting edge averaging 34 yards to 32. Warburton, with his flashes of speed, rolled up the highest individual average with 78 yards gained, followed by all-American Heller, with a 63-yard total and Griffith with 61.

The victory was the fourth for Southern California in as many Rose tournaments. It was the third unsuccessful appearance for Pittsburgh.

Ohio's Conference Teams Will Open Season This Week

COLUMBUS, Jan. 3.—The battle for the Buckeye conference basketball championship will get under way Saturday night when all six teams will see action.

Marshall college of Huntington, W. Va., officially marks its debut into Buckeye ranks by entertaining the Ohio university five. The other games will find Wittenberg at Cincinnati and Ohio Wesleyan at Miami.

Other Games Booked

Some of the schools have non-conference contests this week to tune up for Saturday's conference premieres. Wittenberg makes a jaunt into Indiana, meeting Wabash at Crawfordsville tonight and Depauw at Greencastle tomorrow evening. Marshall will play Morris Harvey tonight and Miami will play host to Indiana while on Wednesday evening Marietta plays at Ohio U.

Based on early season games, Ohio University and Ohio Wesleyan seem to be the foremost contenders for this year's title. Wesleyan, defeated Ohio State, Akron Goodyear, Findlay and Toledo St. Johns but lost to Western Reserve. Ohio defeated Reserve but lost to the Goodyear quintet.

Bobcats Strong

The Bobcats have also scored wins over Bliss, Wilmington and independent teams from East Liverpool and Zanesville.

This season's race will be the seventh since the Buckeye conference was formed back in 1926. Cincinnati won the first season (1927) in 1928 Denison was first and for the next two years Cincinnati and Wesleyan tied for honors. In 1931 Ohio university took the pennant and last year it was passed on to Depauw, a non-conference member this year.

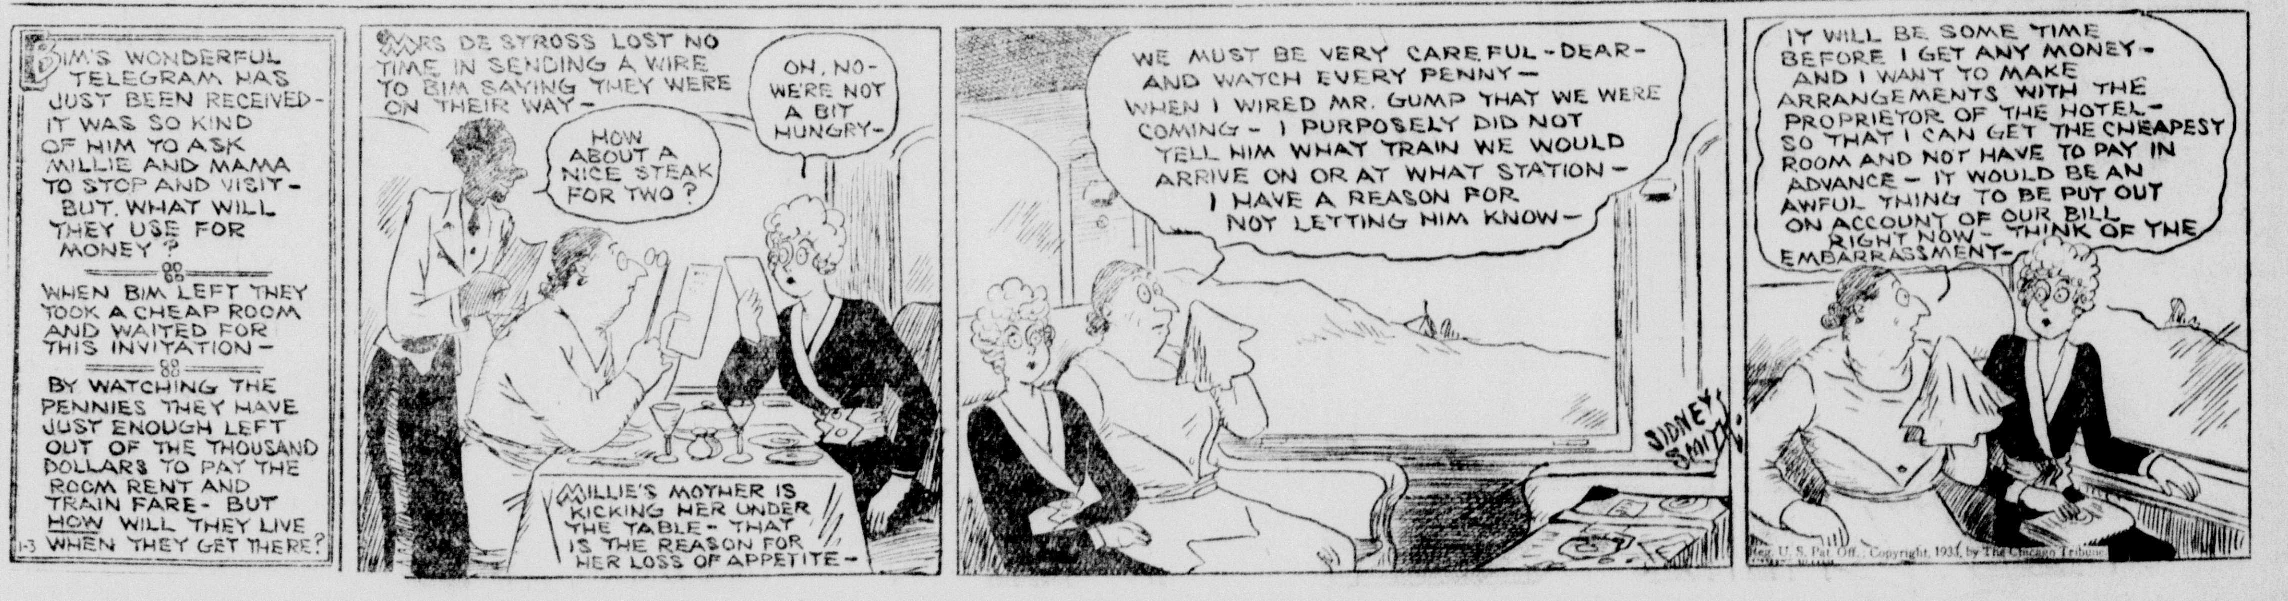
THE GUMPS—ON THEIR MERRY WAY



BIM'S WONDERFUL TELEGRAM HAS JUST BEEN RECEIVED— IT WAS SO KIND OF HIM TO ASK MILLIE AND MAMA TO STOP AND VISIT— BUT, WHAT WILL THEY USE FOR MONEY?
WHEN BIM LEFT THEY TOOK A CHEAP ROOM AND WAITED FOR THIS INVITATION—
BY WATCHING THE PENNIES THEY HAVE JUST ENOUGH LEFT OUT OF THE THOUSAND DOLLARS TO PAY THE ROOM RENT AND TRAIN FARE— BUT HOW WILL THEY LIVE WHEN THEY GET THERE?

HOW ABOUT A NICE STEAK FOR TWO?
OH, NO— WE'RE NOT A BIT HUNGRY—

IT WILL BE SOME TIME BEFORE I GET ANY MONEY— AND I WANT TO MAKE ARRANGEMENTS WITH THE PROPRIETOR OF THE HOTEL— SO THAT I CAN GET THE CHEAPEST ROOM AND NOT HAVE TO PAY IN ADVANCE— IT WOULD BE AN AWFUL THING TO BE PUT OUT ON ACCOUNT OF OUR BILL RIGHT NOW— THINK OF THE EMBARRASSMENT—

THEATER Attractions

"ROCKABYE", starring the ever popular Constance Bennett and featuring Paul Lukas and Joel McCrea, plays today as the State theater's attraction . . .

"Rockabye" tells the story of a stormy love career of an actress who is the bewitching combination of gamin and lady . . . Those who adore her in theater characterizations have no inkling that she came from the gas house district and her acting is entihely a tribute to the talent of her devoted manager, De Bola, (Lukas) . . .

After an exposure that brings about some of her current indiscretions, Judy Carroll makes plans to appear in a new play she has her heart set on . . . It is "Rockabye", but its author, Jake Pell (McCrea) refuses to let her play it, feeling she cannot handle the role . . . What does this affected drawing-room actress know about the heartaches of a gamin of the street, he asks . . . ?

He gets his answer when he falls in love with her, but what can it gain the actress to fall in love with the man who created the role so parallel to her own life? . . .

This question and others that rise up against the young, fiery actress, form a most interesting plot . .

The usual gorgeous Bennett gowns and more are plentiful and the modernistic settings are really beautiful . . .

MISSOULA, Mont.—Permits have been issued for cutting 1,000 cords of firewood from lands of the University of Montana, state forestry officials have announced. The permits served a double purpose, in that fuel was supplied needy families, and the land, set aside for reforestation experiments, cleared at a minimum expense to the school.

TO-DAY'S RADIO PROGRAMS

Auditions for an understudy to a radio actress are under way. When the right person is found it will be one of the few occasions where a backstop will be ready to step in should something happen to the principal's voice.

This decision was made because so much depends upon the quality of the voice of Elsie Hitz, who plays the part of June Armstrong in the telephone romance series on WABC-CBS, listed as "The Magic Voice".

The rush of opening nights for the two theaters in Radio ity caused the cancellation of the second of the Sunday Roxy mammouth symphonies which Leoppold Stokowski was to conduct. The busy week made it impossible to find time for rehearsals.

Damage to crops and property is estimated at many thousands of dollars.

New DeSoto Will Be Viewed Here Soon

De Soto is going to have a new car for 1933!

This is the announcement of F. G. Harris, local De Soto dealer who returned recently from Cleveland where he inspected the new cars.

"I am not authorized to divulge the announcement date or to reveal any other details of the new car at this time," said Harris. "The formal public announcement will not be made for several weeks and it would interfere seriously with well-laid plans the factory has conceived if any of the details were disclosed right now.

"However, within the next week or ten days I expect to have one of the new cars on our showroom floor and although I am not privileged to make a public statement now as to the details, this smart new automobile may be inspected in our showroom in the near future.

$800.00 Cash Offered For Name of Movie Actress

Reward Will Be Paid Everyone Who Submits Most Suitable Name

From Hollywood comes an extraordinary announcement. A movie actress is in need of a name, and $800.00 in cash will be paid for the best suggestion. You can give her yours, or any other name you think of, it may mean $800.00 to you.

This movie actress, whom you have probably seen on the screen of your favorite motion picture theatre is the beautiful Edith Roark. Like most of the stars, she prefers to use a name other than her own, and in order to help her obtain it, $800.00 in cash is offered to anyone who is quick in sending in the name selected. Miss Roark's publicity director says, "Most any name may win." It may be your very own, a name of a friend or relative, or a coined name made up by you. Readers of this announcement are urged to send their suggestions for a name at once because $200.00 extra will be given the winner if name is mailed and postmarked before January 8, 1933. Just make it easy to pronounce and easy to remember. But send it right away, or you may be late for the promptness prize.

All entries must be sent to the Publicity Director's office, George Blake, Studio M-539, 1023 N. Sycamore Ave., Hollywood, California. Only one suggestion for a name should be submitted by each contestant. Everyone is invited to submit a name and in case of ties, duplicate awards will be given. Officials say that any name may win the $800.00, even if submitted on a postcard or scrap of paper. If you can use $800.00, here is an opportunity to get it. Send your suggestion at once.
